Join us as we shine a light on the need, method and practice of health system redesign and its importance in developing health futures.

This symposium will be of interest to clinical redesign students and graduates, quality and safety professionals, healthcare professionals, health leaders and health system researchers.

A not-to-be-missed event, this symposium is timed to coincide with the Taste of the Huon food and drink festival weekend in Southern Tasmania. This weekend is a great opportunity to combine continuing professional development, networking and Diffusion of Innovation with experiences unique to Southern Tasmania at the onset of Autumn.

The cost of the symposium is $100 and abstract submissions are due on December 1, 2019.
